

Scalable Network for Computing and Data Storage Management

Coke S. Reed
David Murphy

ABSTRACT

A communication apparatus comprises a controlled switch capable of communicating scheduled messages and interfacing to a plurality of devices, and an uncontrolled switch capable of communicating unscheduled messages and interfacing to the plurality of devices. The uncontrolled switch generate signals that schedule the messages in the controlled switch.